EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE PRESENTS TWO PLAYS

Large Audience Delighted With the Clever Work of the Cast--Petition for Suffrage Signed.

Association hall was crowded on Monday evening, when the Portsmouth Equal Suffrage League presented two very excellent plays under the management of Miss Mary S. Heffenger. The plays were intended to be educational in a way and the opportunity was taken to present some of the doctrines of the league, distribute literature and present a petition to the Constitutional convention, asking for equal suffrage. Every available seat was taken and it was necessary to bring in many more and then all of the standing room was taken.

Between the plays short addresses were made by Miss Martha S. Kimball, Mrs. Lucius H. Thayer and Miss

ATLANTIC SHORE STREET CARS WILL COME TO THIS CITY

Agreement Reached With B. & M.
Whereby Cars Will Come Across Bridge.

(Special to The Herald)
Boston, Mass., Feb. 27.—The negotiations between the Boston and Maine railroad and the Atlantic Shore Street railway looking to the entrance of the cars of the Atlantic Shore into Portsmouth has been completed. The cars from the line across the river will come across the Portsmouth and Kittery bridge.

This co-operation plan between the Boston and Maine which controls the Portsmouth Street railway will work a great benefit to the travel along the Maine seashore from Kittery to Portland, and with the poor connection of these lines between Maine and New Hampshire which has been a serious drawback since the local line was established. Just what the plans are the railroad officials are not ready to say for the fact that there is much to be done before the cars of the Atlantic Shore line will be seen on Market square. The Herald recently published a story that this plan was contemplated and now that it finally has been decided will be good news to the people on both sides of the river.

TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Rand Had Previously Tried To Strangle His Wife.

WIFE AND DAUGHTER ESCAPE

Flee in Night Clothes and Barefooted in Snow Storm to Home of Major
David Urch. Body of Rand Found by Dr. Towle with Throat Cut From Ear to Ear with Razor Gashes.

George J. G. Rand residing on New Castle avenue committed suicide early this morning by cutting his throat from ear to ear with a razor, after previously attempting to murder his wife and ten years old daughter Doris.

About one o'clock Major David Urch and his family who reside at the New Castle toll house were awakened by screams proceeding from the house occupied by the Rands, and shortly afterward Mrs. Rand and her daughter knocked at the door seeking admission to the Urch homestead.

They were both in their night clothes and bare feet and had fled from their home in a blinding snow storm.

According to the story told by Mrs. Rand, her husband was suffering from a severe cold and had been taking some pills once an hour that he had procured the previous evening.

Shortly after midnight he became violently insane, seized and threw her down and commenced to choke her.

She struggled to loosen the grip of his hands on her throat but was unsuccessful and was rapidly growing weak when her husband's attention was diverted toward the daughter who with all of her feeble strength tried to aid her mother.

Taking the brief opportunity, Mrs. Rand and her daughter fled from the house to that of their neighbor.

When they reached here the elder woman was in a state of collapse and the young girl was suffering greatly from fright. Mrs. Rand's throat bore the marks where he had attempted to strangle her, besides other marks of ill treatment.

Major Urch suggested notifying the police, but Mrs. Rand refused to allow a complaint to be made.

He went to the house of a neighbor and informed him what had taken place in the Rand household, but as the neighbor did not evince any interest in the matter they decided not to visit the house.

For about two hours after that time, light could be seen moving about in the chamber in the northeast part of the house occupied by Mr. Rand.

Both Mrs. Rand and her daughter remained at Major Urch's the remainder of the night and this morning no signs of life being apparent in the house, a telephone message was sent to Dr. Towle.

On the physician's arrival at the house a growling light diet, his eyes, Rand being found lying on the floor of his chamber cold in death, his having cut his throat from ear to ear with a razor.

Medical Officer Wallis D. Walker was summoned and he soon arrived accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Shaw.

The room in which the body was found was in great disorder, showing tracks of the early morning struggle between the frenzied husband and his wife and daughter. An examination of the body showed two distinct gashes made by the razor, the one on the right side of the neck being slightly deeper than that on the left side and evidently made first.

After viewing the body it was turned over to an undertaker for burial.

The Rand family has lived on New Castle avenue for the past year, coming here from Boston. The husband was about 43 years old, and was employed on the navy yard as a machinist and was well liked by his associates.

Mrs. Rand while here has made many friends who will sympathize with her in her troubles. Today she is reported as being on the verge of prostration from her rough usage early this morning and the shock attending the finding of the body of her dead husband.

COMMISSION REFER QUESTION TO ATTORNEY GENERAL

Boston and Maine Dispute Jurisdiction
With Reference to Toll Bridge

Mayor D. W. Badger through City Clerk Corey recently sent a letter to the public service commission desiring to know if the commission had jurisdiction to entertain a petition for remonstrance against the increase of toll rates on the Portsmouth and Kittery bridge.

To his letter the following reply has been received.

Office of Public Service Commission
Concord, N. H., Feb. 26.
Guy B. Corey, City Clerk,
Portsmouth, N. H.,
Replying to yours of February 16, we have referred to the attorney general the question of the jurisdiction of the commission over the interstate toll bridge. The Boston and Maine railroad has disputed our jurisdiction with reference to the bridges over the Piscataqua at Portsmouth and the Connecticut at Woodsville and we find we ought to have the opinion of the attorney general before agreeing on any action.

We will notify you when we hear from him.

E. C. NILES,

showing the arrest first of the wrong man for the stealing of jewels and then the crapping of the right man, through the ingenious use of a similar "little black box." Another reel showed "Children Who Labor," by Ethel Browning. This is an interesting picture produced in co-operation with the National Child Labor Committee. A little girl while traveling with her wealthy parents accidentally gets left at a railroad station and falls into the hands of a poor but sympathetic family. She goes to work in a factory where many children are employed. Through her father he becomes the employer of his own child. Fatima, however, takes a hand in the matter. The mother discovers the child, reform is brought about and instead of employing children their fathers are given work.

in punishing murder by murder. The situation, therefore, has some very desperate aspects and there is little prospect of a change until the anarchists are driven out of the city so that the mill men may not be afraid to increase wages and the operatives may not be afraid to go to work. Were the anarchists driven out, the solution of the whole trouble would be easy.—Lowell Sun.

EXETER LETTER

Many Interesting Items from the Academy Town.

Ben Beckman, of South Scituate, who has been before the Exeter police court in times past on the charge of keeping intoxicating liquors for sale was again arraigned before Judge Shute in police court Monday morning to answer to the same charges. He pleaded not guilty and then there began an interesting hearing, the state being represented by Attorney John Scammon and Beckman by Attorney Edward D. Mayers.

In addition to this charge there was another one brought against him, it being a charge of assault and battery, but as he did not know he was to face a "double-decker," and thus there were no witnesses for this present, the charge was shelved until Thursday morning.

As a matter of fact the other charge was shelved until then, but there was a lively hearing. Beckman told the court that he once sold cider. But when the town went to license he decided to become a law-abiding citizen and in the meantime he had some property left him. "Had you enough left to live without work?" the attorney asked. "Well, I thought if I did not wear out I should rust but," he replied, "and so I decided to do a little work."

There were several witnesses present who told many interesting facts concerning Asa. Judge Shute decided to postpone his decision until Thursday, when the other case will be heard.

The First Parish Men's club of the First church Monday evening entertained the First Parish club at the church vestry. The Rev. Edgar Parke of West Newton delivered an address on "Boston, the Pilgrim City."

At the meeting of the Renaissance club Monday evening held at the residence of Judge H. A. Shute the paper was read by Mrs. Winthrop Pike on "Woman as a Factor in Legislation."

Mrs. Sarah A. Willey died Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edwin E. Young, on Park street. She was born in Chester, Aug. 12, 1828, and had been a resident here for the past six years, coming from Newmarket. She was the widow of Nathaniel Willey. Mrs. Willey was one of the old members of the Methodist church.

At the meeting of Swanscott lodge, K. P., held Monday evening the rank of page was worked on two candidates.

The Benedict club conducted a very enjoyable dance Monday evening. The club is composed mostly of Water street business men.

The annual concert of Phillips Exeter Academy Glee, Mandolin and Banjo clubs will be held at the town hall Saturday evening, March 9.

J. Parker Millbury of Brown court, who was taken to the Cottage hospital Sunday with an attack of pneumonia, died there this morning at 11 o'clock. He was a well known and respected citizen, and is survived by a widow and six children, and also a brother, Timothy R. Millbury of Kensington. He was born in Hampton, N. H., and would have been 55 years of age April 3.

TO DESTROY OLD MILITARY PUBLICATIONS

General Orders, No. 2, have been issued directing accountable officers of the New Hampshire National Guard to destroy obsolete military publications which are the property of the state and which have previously been carried on their periodical returns of property. The list of books to come under this order is specified and includes old drill regulations, guard manuals, old copies of the militia law and military regulations of both the national and state government which have been succeeded by later publications destroyed must be listed and reported.

Books and blank forms which have been filled are permanent records and will be preserved in the various organizations. After they have been completely filled or their use discontinued when partly filled, they will be dropped from returns of property but will not be destroyed as are the obsolete publications.

The order also calls special attention to the necessity of properly caring for the gallery practice rifles now in the hands of the troops. They should be wiped out with an oil rag after every few shots. The lead fouling which will eventually appear in the bore cannot be removed by the same preparations they are used on the service rifle but is readily removed by the use of mercury or quicksilver. To apply it, the bottom of the barrel should be corked and the bore filled with mercury. After standing 20 minutes, the mercury can be poured out and used again and again.

KEEP UP THE TROUBLE.

The residents of Lawrence are beginning now to realize that but for the interference of the anarchists from other states the strike would have been settled long ago by the granting of a substantial increase in wages. The mill men realize that if they granted the increase demanded at the present time the I. W. W. would halt the result as a victory and would then carry the fight into all the other plants of the American Woolen Co. and even to all other mill cities of New England. They arise in good condition during the strike would use the so-called victory as a winter months. So say the ball if very interesting for the crack means of advance, the social reformers. BILL FOR POSTAL EXPRESS INTRODUCED IN SENATE

Senator Gardner of Maine Would Take Over All Express Companies.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Senator Gardner of Maine introduced today a bill under which the Government would take over the properties of express companies and operate them as a part of the postal service, extending the service to the rural delivery.

The measure indicates the probable cost of taking over the properties as follows: Real property $14,932,169; equipment $7,381,405; materials and supplies $138,210; advance payments on contracts $5,336,066; and franchises, good will, etc., $10,577,369, a total of $39,165,519.

While the balance sheets of the companies show other assets of nearly $150,000,000, Senator Gardner argues that these are not devoted to express service, and that this property might be retained by the corporation without impairing its value.

It is proposed by the authors of the bill for the establishment of the "Postal Express," including members of both branches of Congress, that rates charged for express service under the Government shall be based upon weight and length of haul rather than upon the system in effect for the carrying of mails. The power to fix rates would rest with the Postoffice department, subject to appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Senator Gardner, in a long statement analyzing the bill, declares that the transition of the express business from private corporations to Government control could take place in a day and the business continue on the morrow, without visible change to the public in the effectiveness of the service.

He expects to create sentiment in favor of the bill with the argument that rates based upon the quantity and distance of service performed would work no discrimination against any business, wherever located, and that the system provided would meet the opposition urged against the proposed "parcels post," calling for a flat rate, which small merchants say would work to the advantage of large mail order houses.

While the bill introduced today does not fix rates, Senator Gardner offers figures showing that express charges in this country are now 10 times freight charges, and indicating that under the postal system this ratio could be reduced to about 5:12 to 1, and at the same time the express business would be extended to the entire country.

Electricity and Gasoline Combine to Solve Railroad Problems.

The latest thing in railroading is the use of a Gasoline Electric Tool Car which is really a gasoline automobile running on the rails like a hand-car and carrying an electric generator to operate the electric tools which have to a great extent superseded manual labor on the Rock Island Railroad. The motive power for the car is supplied by a 20-horsepower gasoline engine, and the electric power is furnished by a 6.5 kilowatt Crocker-Wheeler generator.

spike screwing machine, as against 8 to 10 minutes per man driving one spike by hand in the old way. It has been found that soft wood ties can be utilized with the same degree of safety as hardwood by using screw spikes, and curve troubles are largely eliminated. The constant replacing of loosened drive spikes in ties is avoided, and there is consequently less rotting of ties caused by spike holes. Extra lengths of cable are carried with plug-in switches every twenty feet so that the electric tools can be used as far as a quarter of a mile from the car. Thus repairs can be effected promptly and at high speed, and the big steam locomotive can puff triumphantly on its way, thanks to the vigilance and efficiency of the little Electric Gasoline Tool Car.

Mary N. Chase, state president. There were two plays and both were very well presented and they greatly delighted the large audience, all of the characters being well cast for their parts.

The first play was entitled, "Lady Geraldine's Speech," and the characters were taken by ladies. Miss Helen Loughton had the part of Dr. Alice Romney and she was exceptionally clever. Miss Francisca Heffenger was very charming in the roll of Lady Geraldine Boleyn, Mrs. Harold H. Bennett was very good as Miss Gertrude Sibberwaite, and Miss Emily Stavers, was very funny as Madame Christine, a distant relative. Miss Helen Loughton, as Maude Sparks, his first cousin, was a hit, and she had a difficult part which she handled very well. The other male member of the cast was Lawrence Wright as Gerald Williams.

The following were the casts: Lady Geraldine's Speech. Dr. Alice Romney, Miss Helen Loughton, Miss Nora Ballie, a professor of literature, Miss Emily Stavers, Miss Hilda Crownsfield, a famous pianist, Mrs. B. B. Wygant, Miss Nellie Grant, a typist, Mrs. C. G. Smith.

A SHORT COLD SPELL PREDICTED

Monday the following Weekly Weather Bureau Bulletin was issued from the central office of the Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C.:

"A disturbance central Sunday in the Southwest will advance northward to the Ohio Valley Monday, and move thence to the St. Lawrence Valley; it will be attended by general precipitation over the Mississippi Valley and the region east thereof, the precipitation being in the form of rain in the southern and snow or rain in the northern States. This disturbance will be followed by a change to considerably colder weather over all districts East of the Rocky Mountains, but it will be of short duration, and it is probable that rising temperature will overspread the Plains States Tuesday, and the Eastern half of the country by the middle of the week.

"The next general disturbance to cross the country will appear in the Far West Wednesday or Thursday, cross the Middle West about Friday, and the Eastern States near the close of the week; it will in all probability be attended by general rain.

An Exchange well says: "That in the race of the presidential candidates it may be a case of the 'survival of the fittest'."

Kate Douglas Wiggin was asked recently how she stood on the vote for women question. She replied she stood about a New England farmer's side. "I stand at my own feet," said a wife who had no very romantic ideas about the opposite sex, and who, hurrying from church to sink, to shed, and back to the kitchen stove, was asked if she wanted to vote. No, I certainly don't! I say if there's one little thing that the men folks can do alone, for goodness sake let 'em do it!" she replied.—Argonaut.

The original Roosevelt man in Portsmouth, is no doubt expecting to be appointed to a Foreign consulate. Once on a time when he made application for a consulate position he wrote that he spoke the language as fluently as a native. There are other things to be considered however.

Rev. Dr. Edward Roble of Greenland, N. H., who is now in his 81st year, observed yesterday the 60th anniversary of his settlement by preaching to his people to whom he regularly ministers. Fifty years ago it was not uncommon for a clergyman to occupy the same pulpit for 40 or 50 years, but it is not likely to be duplicated in the 20th century. If a minister nowadays holds a pastorate for a decade it is regarded as rather unusual.—Newburyport Herald.

Abram Jacobs, who was arrested on Saturday by the county officials for maintaining a gambling nuisance at Rockingham Race track, will undoubtedly be a sadder and wiser man after his case is settled. He will find out in the long run that it is not well to use insulting language to a county official, even if it is across the line in another state.

The contest that is now being waged for the championship between Boreas and Old Sol is attracting wide spread attention among those of sporting proclivities. The final bout will take place somewhere about the 21st of March, when Boreas is sure to receive his knockout blow. Nevertheless, like all other champions who have been deposed, the bully of the North may be expected to make some noise occasionally, unconvinced that he is really a has been.

Professors Colby of Hanover and Tufts of Phillips Exeter, his staunch supporters of Governor Robert Perkins Bass, are out strongly for the re-election of President William H. Taft. By this it would seem as though all of Governor Bass's followers do not take kindly to his espousing the cause of Roosevelt.

BIRD'S EYE VIEWS

Although there is a balance of $123,502.29 in the treasury, by the time congress gets through, Uncle Sam will have to borrow money to clean up his bill book.

Ex-Governor Herriek is to be minister to France. He should make it his duty to go around to Maxim's at daylight, lead home the American tourists and put them to bed.

Most people do not attain fame, until advanced years, but in the public mind George Washington reached the climax of his fame when he wielded the little hatchet.

The presidential candidate that made that uncomplimentary reference years ago to the Patagonians might as well realize that he is completely out of the running.

It does not appear possible to end a summer proceeding with preliminary bouts between such organizations as the new Nationalist party and the Independence League.

One view of the matter seems to be that while the railways are forbidden to issue free passes, the Panama canal shall operate with nothing else.

China having decided to rebuild itself as a republic will now go on with the extensive task of following out the plans and specifications.

Gen. Almsworth is not the first man of prominence to take his pen in hand and demonstrate that it is a most dangerous weapon.

It seems like quite a big thing to introduce a bill in congress, but as only one in 33,000 becomes law, it attracts less attention the nearer you get to Washington.

The Kentucky legislature is fighting against tipping. A man has to work pretty hard in a modern hotel to fight off the vultures that won't let you wash your own face.

The Missouri supreme court has ruled that you can not only print the facts but the inference therefrom. That's fortunate, for it usually takes the inferences to make good headlines.

What has become of Grosvenor of Ohio who used to give the figures of the census of time telling who would be elected president. He would come handy at just this political juncture.

Italy, the home of the Camorra, an anti-Turk campaign and grand opera, is not expected to take the leadership in any peace movement.

Mr. La Follette's name will go before the convention. But all hope of Roosevelt's making the nomination speech has vanished.

An ex-President never speaks as sharply to a mixed audience as he sometimes felt at liberty to speak when addressing Congress.

The automobile business has gone ahead so fast that there is less hope of a good roads movement that can keep up with it.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

Ex-Convicts as New York Chauffeurs
Following up the recent robberies that have been committed in the streets with the aid of motor cars, the New York police have been making some interesting discoveries regarding the character of the men who are operating the taxicabs in that city. The unpleasant discovery has been made that a large number of the public chauffeurs have criminal records, and a conservative estimate places the number of ex-convicts who are working these machines at 100. After one of the taxi murder-robberies it was found that twenty of the licensed chauffeurs had served in the state prisons, and subsequent disclosures have increased the number. Some of these men have very bad records indeed, and there is no reason to doubt the theory that some of the crimes that have startled New York of late in which motorists have figured were the work of these people. The licensing authorities are not to blame for giving permits to men to run motor cars, for private or public service, who have been in prison. The licensing board is not charged with the duty of supervising public morals, but must be sure that the men who are authorized to operate automobiles are capable of handling them properly. FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Gleanings From Files of Portsmouth Chronicle

The schooner Anaconda Ward, from Parsboro, N. S., for New York, loaded with potatoes, put into the lower harbor on Monday afternoon, and near Clark's Island cast two anchors for the night. In the gale of that evening she dragged both anchors. (An instance almost unknown there before, so an old seafaring man tells us) and was only prevented from going ashore on Gerrish Island by cutting away her masts.

The ship Constellation at the Navy Yard twice broke her fasts on Monday night but was brought to anchor by the watchmen.

An important order was issued on Tuesday from the War Department, to the effect that on the 26th inst., the United States Government would take military possession of all telegraph lines. The transmission by telegraph of any intelligence relating to the war, except by permission of the military authorities, is forbidden, and the publication of any such news, however obtained, is prohibited.

It is always to be remembered that the present policy of most communities is to give former prisoners a good chance to re-establish themselves, and it will be extremely hard upon a discharged convict to deny him a chance to make a living. Nevertheless the discovery of such a large number of ex-prisoners among the public chauffeurs of New York is calculated to cause some disquiet.—Washington Star.

It is extremely regrettable that such a great newspaper as the Boston Globe should exhibit such ignorance of American history. Former Governor Black is to be classed politically as a genuine native of New Hampshire, the same as Winston Churchill. Governor Bass and others of the summer political colony, having had quite a number of years, and therefore qualified to aspire to any office within the gift of the people of this commonwealth.—Laconia Democrat.

The name of the capital of New Hampshire has been bestowed upon an avenue in Washington leading directly to Rock Creek park in compliment to Senator Gallinger and in recognition of his services as chairman of the senate committee on the District of Columbia. Concord avenue has a pleasant sound, which Rumford avenue would not possess. Rumford was the old name of Concord. We must be careful in our search for euphony not to follow history too far back.—Boston Transcript.

The "inside" of Clarence E. Clough's pronouncement for Roosevelt is said to be that Governor Bass was disgusted upon his return from Cuba to learn that Mr. Clough had signed the articles of incorporation of incorporation of the Grand Trunk railroad's New Hampshire subsidiary, and instructed the temporary chairman of the Republican state committee to offset the blamish he had placed upon the "progressives" by making a strong Roosevelt declaration, and also announcing that he would not be a candidate for the permanent chairmanship of the state organization.—Concord Patriot.

Romance of a Statue.

The statue of Charles I. which now stands in London was sold to a braze during the commonwealth with the understanding that it should be broken up. The buyer, however, saw a chance to make money and buried it instead. To cover his action he made a large number of bronze knives and forks which were eagerly bought by both royalists and Puritans as souvenirs. When the monarchy was restored the power the statue was dug up again and bought by the government to be placed in its present position, where it has remained since 1674.

He Ought to Get It.

"On what grounds do you seek a divorce from your wife?" asked the lawyer.
"Simply because of a pun," replied the long suffering husband. "You see, she's a sculptress, and it gets on my nerves to hear her remark twenty times a day, 'Will you love me, when I mold?'"—New York Times.

ed, unless the consent of the same authorities is first obtained.

On Tuesday afternoon at Newington, Mr. Isaac Dow, aged about 74 years, was killed by the falling of the roof of his shed, which was heavily laden with snow. He was an active man for one of his years, and had been out of his house alone perhaps half an hour, attending to his stock as usual, and when found was lifeless.

Mr. Dow was a native of Rye, and formerly lived in this city, where he was generally known and respected as a faithful mechanic and worthy man. For many years past he has lived on his farm in Newington, where he leaves a family and a social circle in which his loss is severely felt.

During the great storm of the 25th inst., so much snow blew into the river at Bennington as completely dam it up, leaving the fish high and dry in the bed below, where they were picked up in "quantities to suit consumers."

CASCARETS SURELY STRIGHTEN YOU OUT

No Headache, Biliousness, Upset Stomach, Lazy Liver or Constipated Bowels by Morning.

Are you keeping your bowels, liver and stomach clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passage-way through the alimentary or drainage organs, every few days with Salts, Cathartic pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters?

Stop having a bowel wash-day. Let Cascarets thoroughly cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the undigested, sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken or cause any inconvenience, and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, coated tongue, Indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipated Bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.

RAILROAD NOTES

Four carloads of lumber have been unloaded at the Dover Point bridge to be used in the repair work on that structure.

The freight and passenger business of the Boston and Maine railroad in Newburyport have been consolidated and William D. Harris, formerly passenger agent, will have charge of the entire business.

This change which becomes effective at once is made in accordance with the policy of conservation observed by the present management of the Boston and Maine railroad and is the same as has been pursued at Lynn and Salem and many of the larger stations, bringing the business under one head and concentrating the service and responsibility. Mr. Plumer, formerly freight agent will still be retained in the service.

The Appalachian Mountain club have been making a trip among the White Mountains on a special train, furnished by the Boston and Maine. Conductor Taylor of the work train is engaged in hauling ties from Hampton station for distribution between North Berwick and Rigby on the western route of the Boston and Maine.

A snow plow from this city made a trip over the Dover and York Beach branches early this morning. The plow was in charge of Foreman Colson and Conductor Frank Moore looked after the train.

The Boston and Maine is trying a new color scheme on its passenger cars, and some of the employees, as well as some of the traveling public feel that the management could well afford to practice some retrenchment.

In this department. In other words, they don't like the new colors. The bodies of the cars are again painted olive green, but this year's paint is a little more green than it is olive. The truck frames, stop and other undergear are painted a sort of unripe pitted lime color, that is a different shade of green and one that does not harmonize over well with the olive green hue.

Winslow T. Perkins of Malden former superintendent of the Boston and Maine railroad was a visitor here today.

The granite piers of the Dover Point bridge will shortly be re-enforced by concrete which means considerable work in damming up around the granite work.

GREENLAND

Newsy Notes From Our Neighboring Town.

There was a beautiful service on Sunday morning at the congregational church commemorative of the 60th anniversary of Rev. Dr. Edward Roble's pastorate.

There was a large congregation assembled to honor the beloved pastor. The Methodist church in response to an invitation to be present omitted their usual morning services and was largely represented. There was music by both church choirs of the finest character. Major Chauncey Hoyt of Portsmouth honored the occasion by his presence and violin selections which all present highly appreciated. The sweet strains lent a charm to the organ music by Miss Mildred Mahoney. Vocal solos were beautifully rendered by Mrs. Thorne N. Weeks, Miss Lucy Hoyt and Mrs. Harold O. Bennett.

The auditorium of the church was decorated with a profusion of carnation pinks and sweet peas, the gift from Mr. Edward G. Clough's greenhouses who is most generous to the church for its Sunday adorning.

The pastor of the Methodist church Rev. L. L. Harris offered prayer and at the close of the programme made remarks pertinent to the occasion.

Dr. Roble's sermon was most interesting being largely reminiscent and full of attractive history. He closed with an eloquent testimony relative to his own faith in the divinity of the Lord Jesus Christ. He called this divinity the crowning truth of the Christian religion the completion and perfection of Christian faith.

The entire service was of great interest in recognition of a notable history in the life of pastor and church, and with its pleasant associations long to be kept in loving remembrance.

PORTSMOUTH BOY HEADS N. H. COLLEGE BASE BALL NINE

Captain McPheters Expects to Have a Strong Team This Season.

The first call for candidates for the New Hampshire college baseball team for the coming spring was issued Monday and the first preliminary practice was held in the gymnasium under the direction of Captain McPheters. To date thirty candidates have signified their intention of trying out for the various positions.

There is a wealth of material in college for a team and for the most part most of last year's men are in college. Of the eleven letter men of last season only Captain Kemp, center fielder, Mixer, right fielder and Stark, pitcher, were lost by graduation.

The mainstays of the nine, however, are available this spring. Welch the star catcher of last season; Swager, first base; Captain McPheters second base; Brackett, shortstop; Jones and O'Connors third base; are among the infield men who have proved their value. Sautborn, the big football tackle and basketball center, who broke into the game last year as a pitcher the entire season, will probably be relied upon to do most of the twirling. Paulson and Adams also are pitchers of no mean ability. Reardon is the only man left in the outfield.

The team will still retain most of its batting strength, although it has lost three men. Mixer and Stark were only fair hitters. Kemp's batting, however will be missed, as he won several games last season with his timely hitting.

Until the coach comes Captain McPheters will have charge of the squad in the gymnasium. The batteries will be given the main attention.

PART OF STOLEN MONEY IS RECOVERED BY SHARP WORK

Swedish Annie's New Hat Led to Roundup of Taxicab Thieves.

New York, Feb. 26.—Part of the $25,000 in currency stolen from two bank messengers who were assaulted in a taxicab in the heart of the financial district on Feb. 15, was recovered, tonight, and three men and two women are held by the police.

After working with much reticence, the police admitted, at tonight, that $750 in money, in three bundles of $250 each, all bearing the stamp of the Produce Exchange bank from which the messengers were taking the money at the time of the hold-ups, had been regained. The money was found in Boston by New York detectives who raided the home of Edward Collins, 25 years old, at 60 Windmere road, that city. The police say that Collins describes himself as Edward Kinsman of Boston, a former pugilist and waiter. Collins is under arrest, together with Jesse Abruzzo and Geno Montani, chauffeur of the taxicab in which the hold-up occurred, and two women held by the police as material witnesses.

One of the women is described by the police as "Swedish Annie" and the other as Myrtle Hoyt. It is understood they furnished the police with some of the clues in the case.

On Abruzzo's person the police found a key to a safely deposit vault in the Bowery Savings bank and the prisoner is said to have admitted having about $2000 in the box, but the police have hopes of finding a large sum when they examine to-morrow.

The police regard the capture as one of the finest strokes of detective work in years. The interesting story of their chase is roughly as follows:

Two of the alleged hold-up men escaped in a street car after the robbery and later drove in a taxicab to Peekskill, N. Y., where they took a train with the woman known as "Swedish Annie." The next day the woman returned to New York with an elaborate hat which stunned her friends in the Tenderloin.

Gossiping friends found detectives to confide in and for several days the woman was kept under surveillance. Some of Annie's friends got a peep at the label inside the hat and within a few hours detectives at Albany found the store where it had been bought with part of the alleged loot, and learned that a man answering Collins's description bought the hat for her. They traced Collins to Chicago and thence to Boston, where trail of him was lost, but where in his house part of the money was found.

Detectives watching a house in this city where Collins rented rooms saw him and his companion leave there today, and following them to the Grand Central station they placed the whole party under arrest.

A considerable sum of money, claimed by the police to be a part of the $25,000 stolen in the taxicab robbery in New York, was recovered by the Boston police tonight in a house in that city. Deputy Chief Watts and a Captain McGarr, with a New York officer, are tonight continuing the investigation and refuse to give out details of the find.

SURELY BREAKS UP A BAD COLD

Most Severe Cold or the Grippe Relieved in Several Hours

It is a positive fact that a dose of Pape's Cold Compound taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken will cure Grippe or break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs.

You distinctly feel the cold breaking and all the disagreeable grippe symptoms leaving after the very first dose. It promptly ends the most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research and a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world, which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

The Queer Elephant Shrew.

One kind of African shrew we seldom see or read about is the little elephant shrew. It is barely four inches long, but the trunk and shortened tail combined gives it another four to five inches. The fur, though dark instead of gray, is otherwise like that of a chipmunk, as also are its large and delicate ears, while both in the formation and the manner of using its legs it reminds one of a new species of miniature kangaroo. Again, at times, when in a sitting posture, it looks not unlike a fluffy young chicken which is trying to put out of sight a worm that has proved almost too much for it. Indeed, at all times the elongated and highly sensitive nose or trunk is very much like a dark colored and uneasy worm—that organ, which during wakeful moments is always slightly on the wiggle. It has swift leaping powers. It will tuck up its appendages and, like a ball, roll over and over in a straight line, and, after a usual, which occurs at very short intervals and consists of several mouthfuls only, quite surprises one by standing stock still, apart only from a gentle quivering of the trunk.

A Certain Shot.

The aged, wrinkled gamekeeper whistled his dog and scratched his towed head before turning to the company.

"Yes, sir," said he: "the rummiest master I ever had was old Parson Sharpe. As blind as a bat, he were."

"And did he go shooting?" exclaimed the audience in the village workmen's club.

"Shooting?" replied the gamekeeper, with a snarl of contempt at the question. "Ay, that he did. Yes, he shot regular. When he was in the woods and anything rose I'd cry, 'Birds, sir!' and then I'd run behind the parson and the dogs'd run behind me."

"And then?" asked the audience.

"Then the old gent'd blaze away with both barrels."

"And did he ever hit anything?"

"Oh, yes! Sometimes it was a cow or a horse or a pig or a dog. Now and again it was a man. But he always hit something. He were a veritable shot, he were!"—London Answers.

HARD COAL MINERS TO MAKE MANY DEMANDS

Want Increase in Pay--Eight-Hour Day, Etc.--Operators Claim They Cannot Be Granted.

New York, Feb. 26.—Preliminary to a general conference of anthracite coal operators and delegates of the United Mine Workers of America here tomorrow there were meetings of the leaders of the mine workers' union and labor delegates today to consider the demands which the miners insist shall be incorporated in a working agreement to become operative on April 1.

John P. White of Indianapolis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, three local presidents of the hard coal districts and delegates to the conference from the anthracite region engaged in today's conferences. The labor men big manufacturers and others have are insisting that their demands, laid in stocks to be prepared in case which will affect 175,000 hard coal miners, shall be granted, though it is understood that, outside of the demands for increased wages, fewer hours of labor and payment by the ton, the union will compromise if necessary.

LAWYERS BELIEVE LAW- RENCE'S ACTION ILLEGAL.

Boston, Feb. 26.—In general, such legal authorities as allow their names to be used, criticize the action of the Lawrence City Government in refusing to allow children of the strikers to be sent away.

James H. Vahey said: "I consider the action of the Lawrence authorities in preventing the children from leaving the city and refusing to allow the mothers to place their children on the train an unwarranted interference with the liberty of the children and their parents. I know of no reason why they should prevent the mother from sending their children away if they wanted to do so, and I know of no law which gives anyone the authority to stop them."

Sherman L. Whipple expressed himself briefly by saying: "I dislike to criticize any official, but I know of no law which would prevent the children from leaving the city of Lawrence, and I know of no law which would authorize any person to prevent them from leaving, provided they had their parent's consent."

Former Attorney General Herbert Parker said: "I am unaware of any provision upon which the Lawrence authorities could act in preventing the children from leaving the city when their parents, their rightful guardians, want to send them to another State. I certainly know of no authority which would prevent me from sending my child to another State if I wanted to. There may be a question of interstate law involved."

Attorney Edward S. Crockett gave out the following statement: "The articles in this afternoon's editions of the Boston papers concerning the occurrence at Lawrence have just come to my attention. Is it possible that such an atrocious thing was perpetrated upon an innocent people as is therein set forth? If the circumstances are as stated, then the authorities at Lawrence, responsible for that outrage, are plain, unadorned anarchists. They have by brute force prevented a perfectly lawful thing from being done. If the authorities at Lawrence have a right to prevent the parents there from sending their children from that stricken city, then they have the same right to restrain you and me from taking whatever steps we deem proper and right for the protection of our own little ones."

John L. Gates sided with the authorities. "I have felt all along," he said, "that the authorities, on general principles, should interfere in the removal of the children from the city of Lawrence, because of the subsequent trouble such a course may cause. The object of the shipping of the children was obvious. As for the law on the matter, I suppose there is none which gave the officials authority, unless it is the one touching on the neglect of children, and I would not be surprised if the Court upheld the Lawrence officials in the matter."

Prize Winning Recipe for Raisin Bread

Soak one quart raisins in 1 1/2 cups of potato water; mix in enough flour to make a stiff batter; beat five minutes. Let stand over night. In the morning add two cups sweet milk, into which put one rounded tablespoon cottage cheese, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar. When milk is lukewarm mix with the yeast; add enough flour to make a stiff batter; beat about ten minutes; let rise. When sufficiently raised add two cups of scalded or sweetened milk; mix; add more flour and knead until dough is smooth and elastic. Make into loaves and bake one hour. When baked wet top of loaves with sugar and hot water to prevent the crust becoming too hard. This recipe won the grand prize in the California Raisin Growers' bread contest. The use of Cottage cheese as shortening is significant.

A Meeting

On St. Patrick's Day

By MARY MULCAHEY

Toward the end of the last century a couple named Monahan came over from Ireland to settle in America. They had a son and a daughter, the former being thirteen and the latter ten. The son's name was Dennis and the daughter's Mary. Dennis was a fine boy, tall for his age and strong, with sandy hair and an honest eye in his head.

On the same ship was another family of emigrants for America, the Kellys, in which there was a girl, Eileen, the same age as Mary Monahan. The children came to know each other, and the two girls played together on deck constantly. Dennis preferred to spend his time in the engine room, where the engineer, seeing that he took an interest in machinery, made him welcome. Dennis asked a great many questions as to what this and that were for, and before the voyage was over the engineer would let him a little things for him in connection with the engines.

One day Dennis was on deck talking to one of the sailors, who was doing some polishing of brass. His sister Mary, and Eileen Kelly were playing hide and seek. Dennis saw Eileen in the act of climbing up to hide in one of the lifeboats, swinging to its davit over the deck. Just as she was about to get into the boat the ship gave a lurch and the child was tossed overboard.

The cry Dennis gave attracted the attention of the sailor he was with, who shouted, "Child overboard!" and the man on the bridge ordered the ship stopped and backed. But before it was done Dennis, seeing a life line held to the rail, whipped out his knife cut the thongs and, throwing the buoy over his head, jumped overboard striking the water but a few hundred yards distant from Eileen.

Now, the Monahans had lived on the banks of the Shannon, and Dennis had been from the time he was seven or eight years old used to the water. There was a cove near the house where it was comparatively safe for the children to bathe, but Mrs. Monahan would not permit her son to go into the water there. No matter how restrain the adventuresome spirit of a manly boy, and while the lad was not supposed to go into the water at all he was jumping off a dock into a depth of twenty feet, and though his mother did not know when they left Ireland that he could swim a stroke, he was a leader among his companions in aquatic exercises.

When he saw Eileen plunge into the ocean he knew that an attempt to save her would be a very different affair from his experience in the Shannon; that there was a strong likelihood that any one leaving the ship would be left far behind before it could be stopped and backed, and even when reached it might be difficult to find the lost one.

Springing, as he did, far above the water's surface, he sank some distance beneath it; then rising, with the buoy under his arms, struck out in the direction as near as he could tell to where Eileen would be. Rising and falling with the waves, whenever on a crest he cast his eyes about him in every direction for the girl. It happened that she came up on a great buoyed by air under her skirts at the same time that he rose on another wave. He straightway swam for her and reached her to find her unconscious.

For some fifteen minutes he held her head above water. When tossed up on a wave's crest he could see the steamer at a distance, lying to, and could hear the steam escaping. Then, settling to the trough, he heard a mingled sound of oars and hurried orders and when he was again on a crest saw a lifeboat between him and the ship. He shouted to guide the rescue party. They heard it and in a few minutes were alongside of him.

Dennis and Eileen were taken aboard the steamer, but the girl did not recover consciousness until she had been worked over for an hour by the ship's surgeon. There was not the slightest doubt entertained by any one that without Dennis' effort she would have been lost.

When Eileen returned to consciousness and found herself aboard the ship she remembered that she had been out alone on a boundless ocean and wondered how she had been saved. Dennis was brought to her, and when she was told what he had done she took his hand in hers and looked into his eyes, but said nothing with her lips.

And then and there in her little heart was born a love that was destined to strengthen with the years, though she did not see him.

When the two families landed in America they separated, the Monahans going on to a farm near New York city, the Kellys going west. Dennis Monahan was not fitted for farming, and his taste for machinery soon led him to the metropolis, where great manufacturers furnished employment for so many skilled mechanics. There he became an engineer. The Kellys settled in a city, where the father engaged in merchandising and Eileen entered a parochial school. She was a good scholar, and when she came to be sixteen years old she decided to become a teacher. So her father sent her to a normal school, where, at sixteen, she was graduated with honor.

But the seed that had been planted in her heart for the boy who had saved her from the merciless ocean budded with herself. In her there was an unsatisfied something—what she could not tell—what never left her. A few letters written at different times had passed between the Monahans and the Kellys, but these had ceased within a few years after their landing in America, and the families had lost all trace of each other.

One winter Eileen, who had become a teacher, worked too hard, and, since her health was giving way, her father decided that she must rest, with a change of scene and climate. She was to go to a southern seaport and as the warm weather came on proceed northward to New York and thence home. She started late in February, remained a few weeks at a sea beach in Virginia, then proceeded through Washington, where she spent a few days, striking the metropolis in the middle of March.

The spring came early that year, and New York's skyscrapers and monuments of engineering skill glittered in a warm sunshine. Eileen stopped with acquaintances who told her that within a few days a celebration of St. Patrick's day would take place for which greater preparations had been made than ever before and she must surely see it.

Eileen was not only a good Catholic, but her father and mother had brought her up with a keen reverence for the patron saint of her native land. She was not averse to seeing him honored by the loyal Irish Americans of a great city like New York. Her friends rented a window under which the parade would pass, and on the morning of the gala day they all took possession of it.

It is the waiting for something that is coming that sharpens the zest for it when it arrives. The party remained at the window an hour before there came a faint sound of drums and martial music far up the street, suggesting a vision of prancing horses, glittering banners and uniformed men marching in line. Then came a platoon of policemen, followed by a brass band, behind which caroled the fractious horses of the grand marshal and his staff.

Society after society passed, each bearing its banner surmounted by the sacred emblem of the cross. Then there was one of those halts that occur in parades, and right under the window where Eileen and her friends were sitting the marshal of one of the societies waited, sobbing his horse, which seemed impatient at the delay.

As Eileen sat with her eyes fixed upon this young man with a green sash across his shoulders and a baton in his hand something strange grew up within her. She seemed to have been touched by a wand which had eliminated years and placed her back on the ship at the moment she had regained consciousness after her accident. And between the man on horse back and her there was something akin to that which passed between her and the boy who had saved her.

At the moment some one beside her said in reply to a question, "That society is the United Engineers under Dennis Monahan."

A moment later the young marshal looked up at the window and saw a pair of eyes fixed upon him which were saying, "Come to me." There was something familiar in the girl's face, though he did not remember to have ever seen her before. Then her face broke into a smile, and he knew there must be some past meeting between them. Casting a glance ahead and seeing the way blocked for some distance, he dismounted, left his horse with a team in the ranks and, going to the window which was on the ground floor, looked up at Eileen.

"You know me," he said, "but I can't place you."

"I am the girl you saved from that awful ocean."

CITY NEWS

The plan to combine the clerical force of the telegraph and telephone company in this city will likely come about as soon as the bank people vacate the rooms on Pleasant street. It is said that the new office in which will be located the operating force of the Western Union will strictly up to date and many improvements will be made to benefit the service in this city. It is understood that the business of both companies will be under one head.

There is some talk of another express company starting business between this city and Boston. The parties who are spoken of in connection with the move are residents of Dover and are men who know the business from A to Z, having for years past been affiliated with such business.

A few days ago the mayor and members of the city council made a trip along the water front of Water and Marcy streets. While there is some speculation as to the visit of the city fathers on the shore of the Piscataqua it is certain that Portsmouth is not just ready to build a city pier which would be a good plan in case any steamship line was considering the matter of making this port. However, it may be possible that we get another public bath house before long.

The firemen at loss to know what kind of a move the Hook and Ladder company are trying to make in the bowling tournament schedule and later it was announced that they had pulled out from the contest.

After the games had been started they again made the announcement that they would put a team in the race. The other companies would like to know just where the ladder men are at.

EDISONIAN THEATRE.

Freeman's Hall.
Notwithstanding that the Lenten season has begun, it has had no perceptible effect on the patronage at the Edisonian. The entertainments presented are such that church people or anybody religiously inclined may attend them without sacrificing any scruples, for they are always refined and instructive.

During the coming week there will be several first class vaudeville acts on the bill, including a couple of novelties never before seen in Portsmouth. The first three days we have Gagnon Novelty Equilibrist Billy Tann Ecot; Dancing Tramp comedian, John Behan Com. Mus, singing and dancing, big acts hard to duplicate.

Our picture program for Monday and Tuesday is an exceptionally strong one. Our feature pictures are: The Dumb Messenger, a story of a dog which summoned help when an attempt was made to burglarize a house, with the help of the butler and the maid. The Society Raffles is an interesting factor, deciding to steal the diamonds himself he finds others ahead of him. He holds them at bay until help, summoned by the dog, arrives, and in explanation of his presence declares he was passing, heard the noise and entered. The comedy presented by this character gives a subtle distinction to the film which makes it the more notable.

The "troll" and the young man's dances perform their parts well. The film contains many exhilarating thrills. Foolishness's Christmas. The Lady from the Sea drama. At Daisy farm drama and He didn't like the Time, drama.

Coming Thursday Feb. 29, 1912 Ranch.
